

Volunteers Needed After Hours, Too

Do you think the Connecticut Children's Medical Center (CCMC) is a wonderful resource for our community? Do you think it's the kind of institution that lets you sleep better at night knowing that top-notch medical expertise will be available when you and yours need it? Would you like to support this wonderful institution? Is that a problem because volunteering during business hours is unworkable on your schedule? I have the perfect solution for this dilemma: The Connecticut Children's Medical Center Auxiliary. The Auxiliary exists to promote CCMC and its work within the community; to provide education on matters that impact children's health, safety, and well-being; to provide hands-on support to community-based children's programs; and to provide the funds to help achieve these goals. The Auxiliary has donated over $450,000 to the Medical Center since its founding. It helps provide volunteers at programs and events such as Safe Kids, the Children's Medical Network Telethon, and lobbying efforts. It gives a scholarship to the child of a Medical Center employee.

The Auxiliary meets at 5:00 p.m. on the third Tuesday of the month. You can come to a meeting on your way home. We'll even provide supper. Virtually all of our activities occur during non-business hours. Sound like something you could do? Give me a call (860.666.9837) or send me an e-mail (uauxiliary@ccmckids.org) or come to our next board meeting.
