

CONNECTING CHILDREN TO BEHAVIORAL HEALTH SERVICES

Untreated behavioral problems in children can have a profound impact on their health, well-being, overall functioning and quality of life. However, an overwhelming majority of pediatric primary care providers in Connecticut report that their patients have difficulty obtaining behavioral health services.

This training supports practices in using Connecticut's Behavioral Health Partnership (Beacon Health Options) and local community providers to give children and families the support they need in connecting with behavioral health services. Introductions to services and providers will be made.

Practices receive:

- Resources and referral information
- Introductions to local behavioral health providers
- 1 CME credit
- Meal during the training

Learn more about Educating Practices or contact the Educating Practices team to schedule a training session.